2. Band Biography SYRENCE

Welcome to the home of Heavy Metal!

The band was founded in 2008 in Weil der Stadt, Germany, under the name “Epic Fail” and renamed “SYRENCE” in 2011. Oschlo, Strikar and Fritz remained from the original line-up. From the beginning, only self-composed songs were played. After almost a decade of live shows, the demo '5.0' was released in 2016 with Johnny Vox on vocals. In 2017, Juli joined as the new guitarist and more gigs followed before the band recorded their first full-length album 'Freedom in Fire', which was released in February 2019 via Fastball/Soulfood. This was followed by concerts at home and abroad - including a short tour of the Netherlands, Belgium and England.

Syrence and Johnny Vox (now Iron Echo) have been going their separate ways since March 2022.

The time without vocals was used to gather new song ideas.

In October 2024, we were finally able to officially announce that we had found our new singer in Elena!

Crank it up and long live heavy metal!
